Being a parent is one of the most great pleasures that can be bestowed to any person but it is a duty..a great responsibility..although anyone can be a parent but not everyone can be a good father or mother..not everyone can be able to raise a good child that will became a good person..not everyone instil good on there children..simply because maybe they don't have good in them to begin with..now u have these child that was born without love, care and discipline. A mother who is so caught up in keeping the children's father and neglecting the children...loving the father n resenting the children...taking all the frustrations out on the innocent...poor child getting a lashing for being a child..it not that the mother is incapable of loving the child..however it could very be that the mother is also low on vitamin love.. I mean life sometime can be so cruel and devastating.. every breath you take feels like a knife is being driven through your heart
